THE NEW DRUG STORE

The drug store of the old days was a place where you could buy drugs and little else. Today it is a place where you can buy anything from fishing tackle to phonograph records. How did it happen?

Dr. Logan Clendenning, writing in the American Druggist, believes that the humble postage stamp is to blame.

The public had a way of wanting postage stamps at very odd hours; and it began to discover that the drug store was apt to be the only place open. The druggist was forced to carry stamps. This got both druggist and customer used to looking on the drug store as a convenient place for emergency purchases; and the druggist gradually began to stock up with other things that people might want.

Out of it grew the drug store of today, an institution whose usefulness is measured by the fact that it sells fewer drugs than useful things that people need more.

WHAT WOMEN ASK, THEY GET

Labor women, in conference in Winnipeg, ask for birth control clinics at hospitals, and for the right to instruct families by mail in birth control.

Some, who regard being born as a moral outcome, and prevention as a gross immorality, will find that demand of women alarming. Others, who recognize the entire question of birth regulation as economic, will find it reassuring.

Strictly speaking, morality is the sanction of custom. In that sense, it is a twin quality of economics in the advancement of the race. But

YOU ACTUALLY SEE WHAT THEY FEEL..

YOU can't depend on a child's say, so in choosing shoes, SEE for yourself that the shoes fit. The visible fitting system enables you to do just that—SEE exactly how Jack and Jill shoes fit.

Those little tender feet may be permanently injured before you realize it. When you buy Jack and Jill shoes you can see they are not cramping toes and injuring the feet. Give your children health and happiness by seeing what they feel—THE JACK AND JILL VISIBLE WAY.

to be respected as such, it must be divorced from bigotry.

Those who can afford it can and do secure all the birth control instruction they want. Birth control thus becomes moral for the educated and affluent, but remains immoral for the poor and uneducated. That is not fair either to the affected class or to the race as a whole.

Proponents of birth control argue, fairly enough, that the advance of the race must be measured, not by mere multiplication of its numbers, but by the ratio of fit and useful citizens who contribute to that advance.

Prejudice against birth control is really against one phase of it—prevention. But the science, as they interpret it, is a general instruction, not only in regulating the size of families, but in successful motherhood as well.

Finally, there is the fact that women get what they ask. And having got it, they seldom abuse it. That was the case with the franchise with wives' and widows' rights, with constitutional status, with every other concession they have demanded. And it is becoming the case, for weal or woe, with birth control.

As for the race, it will progress just the same. It has been in the hands of its mothers ever since it started and has always pulled through.

A TIP TO THE MARRIED

Of words of advice in regard to marriage there is no end. Most of it, no doubt, dates all the way back to Adam and Eve, and most of it, just as indubitably, always has been and always will be disregarded; but it does no harm to add a word or two to the general total now and then, anyway.

The latest comes from Judge Samuel Harrison of Evanston, Ill., who has married 900 couples during his period in office. He offers many bits of advice; his best, we think, is this:

"Forgive your partner seventy times seven, and then throw away the account book."

Any happily married couple can tell you the value of that admonition. Mutual forbearance and forgiveness can shave almost any stake out of the path of marital happiness.

CANADIAN GARDEN SERVICE 1930

Laying Out Grounds

One of the main features of a small garden should be a well-kept lawn, states W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, who adds that in his judgment a good lawn without flowers is preferable to flower-beds in a plot of uncare-for grass. A flower-garden without a lawn, he says, might be compared to a picture without a frame, or a precious stone without a setting. The ground in front of the house should be given up to grass for various reasons, continues Mr. Macoun, but there should be at least one bright spot from early Spring until late Summer. Not a bed of flowers in the middle of the grass plot, but if possible close to the house or bordering the walk. Here, then, one can grow tulips or other early-flowering bulbs, followed by Scarlet Geraniums. The latter, although not liked by some persons, are among the most satisfactory plants. If there is some place in sight of the entrance where Scarlet Salvia can be planted, this also is one of the most satisfactory plants for mass effect, but as it may fail if the Summer is hot and dry, it should not be given a too conspicuous position. There should be climbing plants on the house or verandah, and if the right kinds are planted, there will be continuity of bloom from early Summer until Autumn. Among the most satisfactory are English Honeysuckle, Wistaria, Halls' Japanese Honeysuckle, but these succeed only in the mildest parts of Canada. The Wild Virgin's Bower (Clematis virginiana), the Western Virgin's Bower (C. ligusticifolia), Scarlet Trumpet Honeysuckle, Clematis Jackmanni and Clematis paniculata are good for continuity of bloom. The Dutchman's Pipe is one of the best vines for the verandah but the flowers are not conspicuous. Climbing roses are very valuable for fine effects where they are hardy. As they are often not very attractive after blooming because of the insects and disease, it is best to keep them a little in the background. As the foliage of Dr. Van Fleet and American Pillar is free from disease than that of most other varieties, these are two desirable varieties to plant where climbing roses will be conspicuous.

Vegetable Groups

From a cultural standpoint, vegetables fall into three main groups; those that occupy the ground for the entire season, those that produce early crops and may be followed by others, and the late or second crop. In planting the first named sort, space in between may be utilized for growing the quicker-maturing sorts. Those that occupy the ground for the entire season, include the Lima Beans, Late Corn, Cucumbers, Egg Plants, Melons, Onions from seed, Parsnips, Peppers, main crop Potatoes, Pumpkins, Salsify, Squash, and Tomatoes. Now in between the rows of the vegetables just named we may plant early crops such as Bush Beans, Early Beets, Cabbage, Carrots, Corn, and Potatoes. Lettuce, Peas, Radishes, Spinach and Turnips. Under late crops that may follow the early matured sorts, that is vegetables which may be sown in July with good chances of a yield will be Beans, Beets, Late Cabbage, Carrots, Cauliflower, Celery, Corn, Kale, Lettuce (in this case better use a special variety such as Cos), Peas, Spinach and Turnips. Some examples of successful planting are as follows: Spinach followed by Celery, Early Potatoes followed by Late Celery, Lettuce with Turnips planted later, Lettuce with Cabbage, Lettuce with Parsnips later, Cabbage followed by Celery, or Peas and Beans followed by Winter Radish. In the inter-cropping, that is where the second crop matures before the late vegetable occupies the whole space, Cabbage in rows three feet apart can have two rows of Spinach eight or ten inches apart in between. The Spinach will be out of the way before the Cabbage occupies the full room. In the place Spinach, inter-cropping, or early Beets could be used. Between the rows of Corn, Pumpkins can be grown. Between Parsnips, early Beets and Spinach. The writer was fairly successful in
